Se han escrito muchos libros sobre Vietnam, pero este, galardonado con el Premio Internacional de la Prensa, es unico, inigualable, un clasico del siglo XX. El autor, que cubrio la guerra como corresponsal de Esquire, logro escribir con una elocuencia y vigor extraordinarias lo que significaba combatir y sobrevivir en aquel infierno. Prescindiendo de explicaciones oficiales y debates moralizantes, el gran periodista nos muestra a los combatientes tal como eran y nos transporta a la atmosfera pavorosa y alucinante en la que se movian, en la selva, entre emboscadas, acosados por el enemigo y por las pesadillas. / Many books have been written about Vietnam, but this one is unique, unrivalled and a classic of the 20th Century. The author, who covered the war as an Esquire correspondent, wrote with eloquence and extraordinary vigour about what it meant to fight and survive in such a hell. He does so without official explanations and moralizing debates. This great journalist presents us with the combatants exactly how they were and takes us into the terrifying world they lived in; the jungle between ambushes, attacked by the enemy and by their own nightmares.
