The series readers are describing as "sexier than True Blood."

Despite surviving silver poisoning, Vivian isn't out of the fire yet. Rolando is still alive, as is his desire to eliminate all manipulator vampires like her. The streets of Buenos Aires prove to be a tricky hunting ground for Vivian and her husband Rafe, especially when a paranormal serial killer starts leaving bodies behind.

Overwhelmed amidst the city's chaos, they seek help from Jon, Vivian's werewolf servant and the couple's right-hand man. As the deaths continue, a local alpha under scrutiny for the crimes threatens to blame Jon and reveal his master's daytime location--if they don't find the real culprit.

It's a race for the trio to stop the killings, uncover the truth, and catch the vampire responsible for Vivian's torture--before the supernatural locals pick up their proverbial pitchforks and stop them all, for good.

Publisher's Note: This story alternates points of view between Vivian, Rafe, and Jon. No portion of a scene is retold from another point of view, but the story progresses through the eyes of rotating view points, shifting between characters each chapter.

Warning: This book contains adult content (bloody violence, graphic language, and explicit sex) and is not intended for readers under 18.
